

PRESS RELEASE

For immediate release: 27/03/2017

2017 Galapagos Photography Competition launch

Have you recently been to the Galapagos Islands, or are you heading out there soon? Then the Galapagos Conservation Trust want your photos! With categories ranging from Animal Portrait to Man in the Archipelago, there's something for everyone in the 2017 Galapagos Photography Competition.

The Galapagos Conservation Trust is pleased to announce that their 2017 Galapagos Photography Competition is open for entries, with a closing date of Friday 9 June 2017. Whether your interest lies in wildlife photography, capturing landscapes or cataloguing human activity, there is a category for you. With a judging line-up of GCT president Monty Halls, and photographers Tui de Roy and Paul Sansome, this year's competition is shaping up to be the best yet. Not only does the Galapagos Photography Competition celebrate the beauty of the Islands, it also aims to raise awareness of the environmental issues that affect the wildlife and communities who live there.

2016 winner: Galapagos flycatcher by Evangelina Indelicato

Monty Halls said, "It's almost impossible to take a bad photograph in Galapagos - the stark beauty of the islands, the deep blue of the water and equatorial skies, and of course the unique wildlife, make it a photographer's dream. However, whilst it's difficult to take a bad photograph, it's doubly so to take a really outstanding one, an image that stands out amongst thousands of others. I really look forward to seeing the entries to this year's competition, and hope that they capture the essence of the Islands as previous competition winners have certainly done. Good luck to everyone - it is certainly one of my great pleasures to review the entries as they arrive. May the best picture win!"

A selection of the winning and short-listed images will feature in the GCT's 2018 calendar, and will be displayed at Galapagos Day at the Royal Geographical Society in October 2017.

The Galapagos Conservation Trust's 2016 Galapagos Photography Competition was extremely successful, attracting entries from across the UK, North America and South America. The overall winning photo was of a Galapagos flycatcher, by Evangelina Indelicato. This year it could be you so share your best Galapagos moments for a chance to win.

Find out more, including how to enter by visiting galapagosconservation.org.uk/get-involved/photography-competition or email clare@gct.org

ENDS

Notes to editors:

- The Galapagos Photography Competition has been run by Galapagos Conservation Trust since 2001. Its categories include Animal Portrait, Animal Behaviour, Botanical, Landscape and Man in the Archipelago. Find out more about the competition here:

<http://galapagosconservation.org.uk/get-involved/photography-competition/>

- The Galapagos Conservation Trust (GCT) is the only UK charity to focus exclusively on the conservation and sustainability of the Galapagos Islands. Established in 1995 at the Royal Society, GCT raises funding and awareness for projects in Galapagos which focus on science, education and culture. To find out more, visit: galapagosconservation.org.uk/
- Monty Halls is a TV presenter, marine biologist, expedition leader and professional diver. He has presented a number of successful series including the BBC's Great Barrier Reef and The Fisherman's Apprentice. He first visited the Galapagos Islands whilst filming for Channel 5's Great Ocean Adventures in 2005 and has been fascinated by them ever since. After serving as an Ambassador of GCT for many years, Monty took on the role of President at the start of 2015.
www.montyhalls.co.uk
- Tui de Roy is a world-renowned, award-winning wildlife photographer, as well as a writer and acclaimed conservationist who spent most of her life in the Galapagos Islands. Her work has been published in over 40 countries. www.tuideroy.com
- Paul Sansome is an award-winning professional fine art and travel photographer, as well as an experienced photography tutor. His photography has featured in many major publications and he has been awarded in the Wildlife Photographer of the Year, Landscape Photographer of the Year and Travel Photographer of the Year competitions, a rare achievement. www.paulsansome.com

Contact:

Clare Simm, Communications and Marketing Officer, Galapagos Conservation Trust

Office: 020 7399 7440

Email: clare@gct.org

Photos from the 2016 competition are available on request